Oil & Gas Consultant Questions

1. Do they hire subcontractors? (Hiring is considered evaluating, determining expected results and agreeing upon compensation. If someone else does this, the consultant is selecting from a pre-approved list and not “hiring”).

Yes No
2. Do they supervise or give instructions directly to employees/subcontractors? Or are instructions given to the rig supervisor, driller tool pusher, who then relays them to the employees/subcontractors?
Please describe:
3. If major problems arise (stuck pipe, oil spill) do they advise the operator and present options? Or do they solve the problem themselves?
Please describe:
4. Do they view their role as “observe and report” rather than as a job site supervisor?

Yes No
5. What do they do if they observe unsafe acts that may result in serious bodily injury or property damage? Do they stop work themselves or do they report your observations to the lease operator for guidance?
Please describe:
6. Do they sign contracts in their name, other than an MSA with the operator, or payment/work completion tickets with employees/subcontractors?
